

Magdalena is an Associate Research Fellow at the Alfred Deakin Institute for Citizenship and Globalisation. She works in the ARC-funded project on 'A Transcultural Approach to Belonging and Engagement Among Migrant Youth' and with the UNESCO Chair for Comparative Research in Cultural Diversity and Social Justice. Magdalena holds a PhD from the University of Sydney. Her postgraduate research explored the benefits of re-embedding migration studies in broader social theory to gain a substantive understanding of social change and of key social, economic and political inequalities that affect the mobility and wellbeing of populations such as Indigenous people and 'migrants with an irregular status within and across borders. During her doctoral study, Magdalena was employed at the University of Sydney as a lecturer and as part of the ARC-funded project on 'Social Transformation and International Migration in the Twenty-First Century'. Her research interests include: human migration, migrant labour, globalization and transnational processes, human development and inequality.

Tabea Scharrer is a postdoctoral researcher at the Max Planck Institute for Social Anthropology, Halle (Germany). She has conducted research in Tanzania and Kenya on Islamic missionary movements as well as on migration-related issues in refugee camps as well as in urban areas. Her publications include the monograph Narrative islamischer Konversion: Biographische Erzählungen konvertierter Muslime in Ostafrika (transcript, 2013) and two co-edited volumes on Middle Classes in Africa (Palgrave, 2018) and on Mobile Urbanity. Somali Presence in Urban East Africa (Berghahn, 2019).

Jacques Ramírez G. (Ecuador). PhD in Social Anthropology from the Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City. Professor-Researcher University of Cuenca in the Contemporary Anthropology Program. Specialist in Ecuadorian and Latin American Migration. His main lines of research are Migration Policies, Transnational Social Spaces and Citizenship, Migration and State. Author of several books and scientific articles.

