

Swedish Research Council's Graduate School in Migration and Integration

Migration and Intersectional Perspectives

Dates: 1 October – 1 November 2024

On campus week in Gothenburg: 14 –18 October 2024

Accommodation in Gothenburg is covered for all PhD students who are admitted to the course for 5 nights.

Course Directors:

Oksana Shmulyar Gréen, Associate Professor in Sociology, Sociology and Work Science department, University of Gothenburg (oksana.shmulyar@socav.gu.se)

Katarzyna Wojnicka, Associate Professor in Sociology, Sociology and Work Science department, University of Gothenburg (katarzyna.wojnicka@gu.se)

Confirmed Lecturers:

Ann Phoenix, University College London, UK

Liza Mugge, University of Amsterdam, Netherlands

Magdalena Nowicka, Humboldt University, Germany

Sayaka Osanami Törngren, Malmö University, Sweden

Anna Bredström, Linköping University, REMESO, Sweden

Sune Qvotrup Jensen, Aalborg University, Denmark

Łukasz Krzyżowski, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Course Description:

The course highlights the importance of an intersectional analysis in the field of migration studies. It explores a range of scholarly debates on how international migration and mobilities can be theorized and researched empirically using the intersectional approach. The course trains students' ability to identify and analyse empirical material through the intersections of class, ethnicity, gender, generation, sexuality, and other power axes. Students are introduced to a set of research cases, examining for example, families and migration, gendered forms of migration, privileged mobilities, age-conditioned types of migration, care and other work-related mobilities, etc. Students will engage with important questions pertaining to transforming European migration regimes, political economy, citizenship and social exclusion/ inclusion as well as to the emerging forms of mobilisation and civil society responses related to mobility and migration.

Deadline for applications: 7 August 2024

About the Graduate School in Migration and Integration:

- Our Graduate School courses are offered to PhD students.
- 5 weeks of full-time work for 7,5 ECTS. One intensive week at REMESO, Campus Norrköping, Linköping University OR at the Department of Sociology and Work Science, School of Global Studies or the Department of Law at the University of Gothenburg
- All courses are taught in English.
- Courses are usually examined by a paper assignment.
- Accommodation is provided for free to all PhD students who are admitted to our courses.

To apply, please use the application form, which will be available from the 15th of April 2024 at : <https://fubasextern.gu.se/fubasextern/info?kurs=SC30017>

For more information on the graduate school, see:

<https://www.gu.se/en/socav/doctoral-studies/the-swedish-research-councils-graduate-school-in-migration-and-integration>

<https://liu.se/forskning/vetenskapsradets-forskarskola-i-migration-och-integration>

Contact the course directors:

Oksana Shmulyar Gréen, oksana.shmulyar@socav.gu.se

Katarzyna Wojnicka, katarzyna.wojnicka@gu.se.

Contact the departmental administrator: Iréne Carlensberg, irene.carlensberg@gu.se